Understanding of Sunset Christian Preschool & Extended Care Policies and Parent & Family Responsibilities

Sunset Christian Preschool (SCP) and Extended care are ministries of University Place Presbyterian Church that strive to provide children a foundation of Christian faith alongside an educational experience that develops the whole child - spiritual, social, emotional, intellectual, and physical. Our program is designed to expose a life-long love of learning through the development of each child's unique gifts and talents.

The Incidence of Obesity in an Urban, Indigent Population of Pediatric Surgical Patients and Its Association with Anesthetic Mortality

Thomas M Schreiber MD, MBA and Catherine Schomburg RN
UNRWJ New Jersey Medical School, Newark, NJ

Introduction. According to most recent and conservative estimates, the percentage of obese children between the ages of 6 and 16 is roughly 13% (1). In the urban, indigent population of children at our university hospital, however, we suspected that the incidence of obesity (as defined by body mass index, or BMI, at the 95th percentile or greater) would be much higher. In accordance with prior studies (2), obese or morbidly obese children are historically more prevalent in children from low socioeconomic status families (3). It has been suggested that urban, indigent pediatric surgical patients may be at risk for increased anesthetic complications.

Methods. A retrospective chart review was undertaken for all pediatric patients presenting to our operating rooms during the calendar year 2004. IRB approval was obtained and all HIPAA guidelines followed. Trained evaluators used a standardized data collection form (see appendix 1) that included demographic information, medical history, height, weight, and specific problems identified during the course of anesthesia for each of these children. 187 of 1930 patient charts have been returned to date, and the process is ongoing; 135 of those were rejected due to incomplete information, usually height measurements. Anesthetic mortalities were tallied in both obese and non-obese groups and the chi-square test was used to detect any appreciable differences between the groups.

Results. Of the 232 patients in the study, 79 were identified as obese by CDC criteria (BMI >95th percentile) represented by sex: 21 obese children were male and 29 female (26%). The overall incidence in our review, thus, was 33.4%. If children at risk for obesity are included in the tally (BMI 85-94% percentile), the incidence rises to 42.5%. Of all the factors surveyed in this retrospective analysis, only the occurrence of intra-op brachycephalic was significantly different between obese and non-obese patients, OR(1), 3rd=6.4046, p<0.025.

Survey of Brachycephalic and Obesity
	Obese	Non-obese	Total
Brachycephalic - yes	3	0	3
Brachycephalic - no	76	177	253
Total	82	177	255

Discussion. Our incidence of obesity, 33.4%, reflects a marked increase as compared to the population of pediatric patients generally (1), confirming our clinical impression and the urban-rural phenomenon of obesity epidemic (4). In addition, 18 of our 232 patients were underweight (BMI <5% ICI). Adding obese, at risk for obese, and underweight children, the overall incidence of nutritionally challenged patients in our urban, indigent population stands at an alarming rate of 50%. Patient morbidity related to surgically firm complications, 7 among 232 anesthetics, yielding a morbidity rate of 2.7% that is consistent with national averages (5). Child status on brachycephalic was significant among the three groups, probably reflecting the high rate of anemias in our patient population. In turn, our patient population provides an unusual by side source of potential information regarding issues of obesity in anesthetic planning, anesthetic administration, and effects of anemias which may be being pursued in prospective, randomized clinical trials.
